Annual Report

January 1 through December 31, 2006

Mission Statement: The Kansas Land Trust is a non-profit organization that protects and preserves lands of ecological, scenic, historic, agricultural, or recreational significance in Kansas.

Highlights of 2006

We are pleased to report that, at the end of our sixteenth year, the Kansas Land Trust is flourishing. Conservation easements completed during 2006 account for twenty percent of the total acreage KLT now protects. Our efforts to develop funding to purchase easements in areas most in need of protection resulted in a four-fold increase in the funds for easement purchase projects. Membership continues to grow. Our members, through steady membership contributions and several large donations, as well as grants, increased the operating funds by 1½ times, so we could maintain the essential staffing and office space needed to do our work.

In addition to easement activity, we have spread the message of KLT to more than 750 people through events, seminars and other presentations. This overall increased activity has given us a larger "presence" in the state, attracting the interest of landowners from 45 counties and doubling the number of requests for information about how to complete a conservation easement. We are steadfast in our commitment to serving landowners who wish to donate conservation easements. At the same time, we are strengthening the funding base for purchasing easements in the Flint Hills.

We are tremendously grateful for the generosity of KLT donors through general funds, grants and stewardship contributions. Our members can take much pride in the statewide conservation service they support. Over the years, members and donors have enabled us to increase awareness of and respond to the demand for our services, and this past year has been truly remarkable.

Easement Activity

KLT now holds 26 easements preserving a total of 4,731 acres. This includes five new easements acquired in 2006 on 913 acres in Jefferson, Morris and Riley counties. The Morris County easement was the very first conservation easement purchase that received matching funds from the State of Kansas. We are also proud to be the first land trust to identify and combine two federal funding sources, FRPP and ACUB, on the same easement project.

During 2006 we responded to 85 new easement inquiries on more than 57,125 acres in addition to ongoing work on 32 easements-in-process, covering over 14,560 acres. During the year, representatives of KLT visited properties in Comanche, Douglas, Geary, Jefferson, Johnson, Morris and Riley counties to assess conservation values on lands with easement inquiries. We also visited and monitored all of our easement properties.

Events

KLT hosted four events in 2006, including a dinner, nature walks, easement dedications and programs attended by more than 330 people. They have brought our members and easement donors together to celebrate the places we protect and helped educate more Kansans to better understand and appreciate the benefits of land conservation.

In February, we held our annual old-fashioned Community Supper in Lecompton. Our 140 guests enjoyed a great home-cooked meal and a program in the historic Territorial Capitol building. In April 2006, we hosted a walk through a gem of a prairie and woods on the Doug and Ruth Ann Guess easement property located in Douglas County. In September, KLT celebrated an easement dedication at the Bacons' Flint Hills Ranch in Morris County with a hayrack ride tour of the property and a meal served from a fifth generation chuck wagon of the Hoy family's Flying W. Ranch. All this was topped off with live music by the Flint Hills' own Tallgrass Express String Band. On an unseasonably warm November morning, KLT co-hosted another Flint Hills easement dedication and signing ceremony on Jane Laman's land in Riley County. Our 100 guests enjoyed remarks from a host of federal and state officials along with the landowner and KLT President Bev Worster.

mission statement

"The Kansas Land Trust is a nonprofit organization that protects and preserves land of ecological, scenic, historic, agricultural, or recreational significance in Kansas." As a land trust, the organization uses a variety of long-term land protection mechanisms but primarily accepts conservation easements from willing landowners. Conservation easements are legal agreements by which landowners voluntarily restrict the type and amount of use permitted on their property. The Kansas Land Trust (KLT) is tax-exempt as described in Section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code. Donations of easements or land to KLT for conservation purposes may have potential tax benefits for donors. KLT is funded by individual contributors, private foundations, corporations, and government agencies.

Dear Kansas Land Trust Members & Friends:

The year 2006 has been a truly remarkable year. For several years we have been devoting more effort to education and outreach. We have also worked to identify and promote more funding sources as the need to purchase easements in some critical areas has become apparent. It appears that all of this additional effort began to have a "snowball effect" during this past year. Receiving state funding allowed us to leverage federal funding which led to the protection of several hundred acres in the Flint Hills. Education and outreach, along with increased easement activity, has sparked more interest in easements among landowners who have inquired about the possibility of protecting a total of more than 71,000 acres. The pace of our work has seen a dramatic increase; the more work we do, the more work we are asked to do. For a land trust, that is great news!

As our activity increases, we continue to expand our audience with our newsletters, seminars and presentations to the public. We also must maintain additional staff and office space. It is a challenge to keep up with the growth, but we know that our members and donors are as passionate about this work as we are. In the final analysis, the supporting members of KLT still form the backbone of the organization, allowing us to provide the services that culminate in preservation of the places we love.

We look forward to another successful year in 2007.

Sincerely yours,

Beverley Worster
President

RoxAnne Miller,
Executive Director

audit and reported on June 18, 2006 that the financial statements fairly present the cash, revenues and expenses for the year ending December 31, 2005. Our funding continues to support our remarkable growth through increases in membership contributions, grants, and stewardship gifts.

Grants

In 2006, KLT continued conservation easement research through a grant from the Kingsbury Family Foundation and gained approval for a similar grant in 2007.

The Lawrence/Douglas County Chamber of Commerce provided a grant for an administrative assistant for the city/county ECO<sup>2</sup> program. ECO<sup>2</sup> is a unique public effort in Douglas County to combine funding and planning for economic development and open space preservation. The name for the program, ECO<sup>2</sup>, was selected by residents to represent the exponential benefits to the community when investing in both economic development and preservation. KLT also participated in the Kansas Work Study Program, receiving funds for our intern.

Staff, Volunteers & Board

RoxAnne Miller continues as the Executive Director. KLT now enjoys the assistance of a full-time conservation associate, Steve Roels, and a part-time administrative assistant, Karen Johnson. Also, Jami Jeffrey provided assistance to KLT as an intern.

KLT receives tremendous support from our Board Members and others who volunteer their special skills by assisting with review of legal documents, organizing and working at events, staffing a KLT information booth at events, assessing and monitoring easement properties, communicating with members, and writing and editing articles for the newsletter. Two KLT Board members retired in 2006: Sandra Shaw and Jonathan Kahn. We greatly appreciate their dedicated service to KLT. They contributed time, energy, resources and professional expertise.

Communications

KLT was pleased to publish four issues of Stewardship Notes, our quarterly newsletter. This year we received funding to provide the Winter 2006 issue in full color.

Education

RoxAnne Miller, Executive Director and Sarah Cross, KLT Conservation Associate, attended the 2006 Land Trust Alliance Rally in Nashville, Tennessee. A few of the workshops attended included the topics: "Selection and Evaluation of Conservation Projects," "Funding Conservation Stewardship," and "Conservation Easement Tax Issues." More than 1,500 land trusts were represented at the rally.

Outreach

RoxAnne Miller presented nine educational seminars and presentations on conservation easements, reaching a collective audience of more than 430 people during the year. She spoke at an annual conference held by Kansas WRAPS (Watershed Restoration & Protection Strategy), taught a Workshop for the Mid-America Association of Conservation Districts on Rural/Urban Land Use Issues, and, at the National Land Trust Rally, presented on the topic "Military Base Buffers: An Emerging Opportunity for Land Trusts." In addition, she gave presentations to civic organizations, attorneys, surveyors, appraisers and university students.

Merchandise & Gifts

KLT continues to offer for sale five beautiful varieties of note cards featuring Lisa Grossman's Flint Hills landscapes and native wildflowers by Doug Guess. We also sell prints of some of the stunning photos from The Kansas Landscape, Volume I and have begun offering prints from Volume II. New or renewing KLT members who gave $100 or more received a gift of The Kansas Landscape: Images from Home, Volume II, the second book of photos by Mark Feiden and Edward C. Robison III.

In December, we launched our very first on-line charitable auction, in which new items with a retail value of $10,000 were auctioned off with the proceeds going to support KLT. We wish to thank the Coleman Company in Wichita for this generous donation of products.

Developing Funding

KLT continued to dedicate many hours to developing public funding for land preservation. We focused our efforts on enhancing federal, state, and local funding for the purchase of conservation easements in Kansas. That effort reaped dramatic results in 2006, with the receipt of more than $495,000 in federal and state funding and authorization of more than $2,250,000 in additional federal funds for purchasing conservation easements in future years. A great example of how funding builds on other funding occurred in 2006, when KLT used $311,500 in state funds to leverage $2,400,000 in federal funds. Last year, ninety percent of these funds were paid directly to the landowners and ten percent covered the costs of doing the land trust's work. Landowners then contributed generously to provide for the long-term stewardship of the conservation easements.

KLT has always believed that the key to our success is to educate and involve more people. By joining together we can achieve so much more than we can as individuals. The successes of 2006 confirm the logic of that approach. Our outreach has brought in government agencies, landowners, professionals, organizations, corporations, large donors, and hundreds of Kansans who contribute because they understand the benefits of our work both now and in the future. Thanks to you all for joining us in our preservation efforts.
